"CHURCH SUBJUGATES ALIENS."

WYOMING MAN SAYS COMPANIES PAY Clergy and Missionaries There.

The big corporations of Wyoming pay the clergy and the field missionary workers to keep down the Italians and Greeks, so that they may continue to hold labor in their grasp, Rev. Daniel

S. McCorkle, of Sunrise, Wyo., told the Socialist party of the District at Pythian Temple last night.

"I am the only man in Sunrise," said Rev. McCorkle, "who is not on the payroll of a fuel and iron company of that region. Even the church elders of the town derive their living from the company for keeping down the Italians and Greeks."

Italian Light Rifle Regiment Practicing Jumping in Recent Maneuvers

The members of the Bersaglieri, light riflemen of the Italian army, are trained soldiers. The photograph shows them at practice, fully armed and accoutered. That they are an agile and nimble corps is evident, and so, indeed, must they be, for they are trained especially for service in the mountainous parts of Italy.

At BANFF

IN THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

After the exhilaration of a day begun by a dip in the Sulphur Swimming Pool, a pony ride up Tunnel Mountain trail, casting for trout on Minnewanka Lake, or golfing on a superb course, the radiant lights from the Canadian Pacific hotel, like an old French chateau, welcome to good cheer within.

At Lake Louise, Field, Glacier and Revelstoke there are other hotels of Canadian Pacific excellence to break the journey through America's Switzerland, the Canadian Rockies.
